PRICE TWO CENTS

PLAYERS SCORE IN ENGLISH COMEDY

Talent, Accustomed to the Stage, Interprets "Three Live Ghosts" Well.

LEARN COCKNEY ACCENT

Plot of Production is Off the Beaten Track and Pleases Fair-Sized Audience; Laid in London.

Although a capacity house failed to greet the players, home talent appearing in "Three Live Ghosts," produced for the benefit of the Gettysburg Fire Company, scored an unqualified hit at the Lincoln Way Theater Tuesday evening. In more ways than one the show was the best home talent performance ever witnessed here, veteran theater-goers declared.

In the first place, "Three Live Ghosts" is an English play with the scenes laid in London in 1917. In order to make the show a success, it was necessary for the players to simulate the cockney twang of the Londoner. With such market success did the players drop and add the "It's" and pronounce brains "brines" that it took the audience some time in the first act to catch onto the language.

Contributing to the successful manner in which the play was presented was the fact that all of the actors and actresses had taken part in previous home talent performances and did not have to go through the trials of stage fright.

"Three Live Ghosts" was chock full of witty lines, with here and there a dash of pathos and tragedy as is to be expected of World War productions.

In brief, the plot of the show is woven around the incidents in connection with the return to London of "Jimmie Gubbins," "William Foster," and "Spooky," three buddies in France who were reported as missing. Early in the play they return to "Jimmie's" home in London.

"Foster" is an American and is wanted by police in the United States for the theft of $60,000 worth of his father's bonds, an act committed just before he enlisted. As the story develops, he meets "Miss Ross Gordon," an old sweetheart in the States, who happens to be "down on her luck" in the same house as that occupied by the "Gubbins."

"Spooky" is a victim of shell-shock with a strong inclination to steal. Unconsciously he leaves the "Gubbins" home and robs a home, taking a baby and a number of jewels which he brings back to the "Gubbins." The scene in which he enters the "Gubbins" home pushing a gaily decorated baby carriage and wearing a "stove pipe" hat brought forth a big laugh. (Continued on Third Page)

NOW IS TIME TO FEED GAME, SAYS WARDEN

Many Birds and Animals Die When Snow Covers Ground.

"Now is the time to feed the game," declared Leo Bushman, county game warden, this morning in asking that persons throughout the county put scraps of food and feed in places where game can eat it. With the county covered with a blanket of snow, many birds and animals are unable to find enough food to maintain life, but fewer will die if food is placed where it can be conveniently gotten, Warden Bushman declared.

Heavy Rain Makes Slush Out of Winter's Deepest Snowfall

Maximum of Nearly Eight Inches Reported in Some Sections of County; Rain and Sleet Follow Without Creating Any Damage.

Tuesday's snowfall, the heaviest in Adams county this winter, by 7:30 o'clock Tuesday evening had turned into a combination of rain and sleet, creating a sea of slush over the county by morning which only the highest types of rubbers and arctics could keep out.

Rain continued to fall until the middle of the morning, when possible signs of clearing could be noticed.
Rising temperatures assisted the rain in melting the heavy snowfall, with the result that gutters ran full and the "young blizzard" of Tuesday disappeared rapidly.

The weather report for this section, however, calls for a continuation of local snows, with colder temperatures tonight. Thursday will be cloudy and colder, with possibility of snow flurries, although no appreciable precipitation is anticipated.

While the sleet coated everything by dawn this morning, the coating was not sufficiently heavy to cause any damage to telegraph and telephone wires in the county, as far as was learned. No reports of damage to trees or other destruction caused by the sleet were received here.

Snow plows, mounted on trucks, patrolled the roads and highways of this and the adjoining counties from early Tuesday morning, and by nightfall the State highway department reported all roads clear and open for traffic. Due to reports from the weather bureau that the snow might continue throughout today, preparations were made by the department to bring out the heavier snow plows and tractors in order to keep the roads open.

JR. O. U. A. M.
CONVENTION

Program For September Meeting Includes Trip Over Battlefield.

The program for the Pennsylvania state convention of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, to be held in York the second week in September, was outlined by Past Councilor Joseph Beaverson, in an address at the meeting of the county association held in the Jacob Jones lodge rooms Tuesday evening. Although no definite plans have yet been made, elaborate preparations are to be made for the entertainment of the visitors.
If plans can be worked out there will probably be a concert at the York High School auditorium the first night; a parade and demonstration at the fair grounds the second night; an ox roast and dance the next night, and the last day a tour of the battlefield at Gettysburg. The Gettysburg delegation of the Order expects to attend all sessions.

An Emblem for the convention delegates was adopted. An order for eight hundred badges, anticipating that about that many will attend will be given shortly. On the badge, to be about one and one-half inches square, will be a keystone, emblem of Pennsylvania; the red, white and blue, national colors; a white rose, symbolic of York; a reproduction of the old court house, and appropriate inscription, including the date and the name of the city.

State Councilor Harvey Grubb, Johnstown, in an address, urged the order to support the measure now going through congress, calling for restriction to immigration. His remarks were received by applause by the 33 persons, representing five of the 15 councils in the county. The heavy snow fall was responsible for many of the councils not being represented.

Because of the small number of councils represented a full committee for the arrangements for the convention was not selected. There is to be a general committee composed of two members from each council. Rev.
George A. Heiss, chaplain of the county association, made a short address in which he stated that he agreed with the state councilor that immigration should be restricted.

WED BY CURATE

Miss Esther E. Biler, of Mt. Pleasant township, and George F. Lawrence, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Lawrence, of Centennial, were married at Conewago Chapel, near McSherrystown, Tuesday, by the Rev.
John H. Eberle, curate.

During the steady snowfall of Monday night and all day Tuesday, the thermometer hovered around the 10-above-zero point, and the flakes which fell were light and feathery. A maximum depth of nearly eight inches was experienced in some sections here, and it was due only to the fact that the storm was not accompanied by high gales, it is stated, that roads were not drifted closed throughout this part of the state.

After the snow plows had levelled the covering of snow on Baltimore street, Baltimore hill was called into play Tuesday evening as a sledding ground for the children. Their dreams of fine coasting for many days to come were shattered by the heavy rain which followed, however.

Moving from central high pressure barometric area over the southern states to the northwest, the storm was encountered by a stiff wind from the northeast, producing an eddy, eddy, swirling storm driving in no particular direction.

The effect of the storm update was indicated by a report from Harrisburg, in which it was stated that 3000 men, all available tractors, snow plows and other road equipment were used to keep the highways open. In counties along the Maryland line from four inches to a foot of snow, with drifts ten feet deep in some places, were reported.

While crews of railroad and trolley lines were battling with the drifts, telephone linemen were preparing for emergency calls. There was no serious interruption along railroad lines, except that upstate trains were running twenty minutes behind schedule.

INITIATE EIGHT BEFORE FOUNDERS' DAY BANQUET

Local Chapter of Phi Kappa Psi Now Has Oldest Fraternity House In Country.

Following the initiation of eight pledges into Pennsylvania Delta chapter of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity at Gettysburg College on Tuesday evening, the annual Founders' Day banquet was held. The initiation ceremony took place in the fraternity's former lodge on the campus, while the dinner was served at the organization's new home in the rear of the College gymnasium.

The banquet marked the seventy-second anniversary of the founding of Phi Kappa Psi. It was stated at the meeting that the fraternity's former lodge is now the oldest collegiate fraternity house in the United States, since the demolition last year of one several years older at Brown University. The lodge here, which is still used for meetings and initiations, was built forty-four years ago.

BURY J. A. STALLSMITH

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson Assists
Rev. F. L. Stine in Services.

Largely attended funeral services were held this afternoon from his home on York street for John A.
Stallsmith, well-known resident of Gettysburg and Adams county, who died Sunday evening. Rev. F. L.
Stine, pastor of the Gettysburg United Brethren church, of which the deceased was a member, was in charge of the services, assisted by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Members of the Gettysburg lodge of Elks, of which Mr. Stallsmith was a member, attended the services in a body.

Palbearers were: Oscar Lupp, C.
W. Gardner, Edward Moser, M. W.
Klinefelter, J. Walter Lease and Charles Halbert.

MISS BLANCHE E. MICKLEY

Miss Blanche Elizabeth Mickley, daughter of the late David A. and Mrs. Mary J. Mickley, died at her home in Cashtown this morning at 4:30 o'clock after an illness of one year. She was aged 39 years, 2 months and 13 days.

Miss Mickley was a member of Flohr's Lutheran church and for a number of years was organist in the church and Sunday School.

She is survived by her mother and one sister, Mrs. Clarence Andrews, of Cashtown.

Funeral services Saturday morning at 10 o'clock from her late home conducted by the Rev. George Ely, her pastor. Interment at Flohr's Cemetery.

DELEGATES BACK FROM CONFERENCE

Six From Seminary and One From College at Lancaster Student Gathering.

Six delegates from the Lutheran Theological Seminary and one from Gettysburg College have returned from Lancaster where they attended the annual Student Volunteer Conference held February 15, 16 and 17.

The sessions were held in both the Seminary and College chapels at Lancaster and on the Franklin and Marshall College campus. About 250 students were present, representing many colleges and universities in Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

Rev. Dr. George W. Richards, president of the Reformed Seminary at Lancaster, and Dr. Paul Harrison, a medical missionary from Arabia, were the principal speakers at the conference, which was voted a success by all present.

Holy Trinity Lutheran church was of particular interest to the Lutheran delegates. The first recorded services were held in it November 29, 1729, while the present edifice was erected in 1761. The church is in fine state of preservation, the delegates say.

On Sunday morning, Raymond C.
Miller, one of the delegates from the Seminary here, was appointed by the Seminary faculty to supply the pulpit of St. John's Lutheran church, the pastor of which, the Rev. J. H.
Musselman, is a brother of Dr. J. Ellis Musselman, Springs avenue. Other delegates from Seminary were:
Pierce Willard, Raymond Sorrick, Arthur Fuhrman, Frederick Stueber and Wilbur Eschenauer. The College was represented by William Zeigler.

PREDICT QUAKE
BY METEOR STUDY

Latest Meteorite Goes to Museum to Join Gettysburg's "Star."

Another of Pennsylvania's larger meteorites has gone to the State Museum in Harrisburg, where it will be placed on exhibit along with the large one found near Gettysburg in 1887, and which has been on view there for a number of years.

The incident of the arrival on Tuesday of this newest of the state's five meteorites has called forth the statement that the falling stars, or meteors, which cause many persons to look heavenward at night, and "make a wish," if they are superstitious, may be the means of foretelling in future generations earthquakes like the Japanese catastrophe of last fall.

How this may be done, by analyzing meteoric deposits, was explained Tuesday night to the Harrisburg Natural History Society meeting in the State Museum, by R. W. Stone, State geologist.

In connection with his talk, Geologist Stone exhibited the New Baltimore meteorite, the latest of the only five meteorites ever found in Pennsylvania. The large specimen which was discovered near Gettysburg in 1887 was the second to be found in the state. The others were found: near Pittsburgh; 1850; Bald Eagle Mountain, near Williamsport, 1891; near Shrewsbury, York county, 1907.

Analysis of meteoric deposits have shown that the heavenly visitors are largely composed of nickeliferous iron, Mr. Stone explains.

Scientists have concluded by a number of methods that the center of the earth is also composed of nickeliferous iron. By a study of the properties of the deposits, he explained, the properties of the core of the earth's mass may also be determined.

Whenever an earthquake occurs, Mr. Stone said, seismographs record two shocks. One is transmitted around the surface of the globe, the other through the center of the earth, scientists believe. The first recorded, the scientists believe, comes the shortest distance, through the earth instead of around.

Charting Earthquakes

By charting the frequency and cycles of earthquakes, and studying the method in which the nickelifer-ous iron communicates shocks and other internal movements, it is the opinion that at a time, not far distant, earthquake predictions will be no more uncommon than storm warnings and weather predictions, with the result that persons and property in the danger zone may be able to be moved to safety, and relief expeditions can be dispatched to MAN INJURED BY A FALLING TREE

Horatio Lease, 45, is Hurt on Farm Near Maple Grove.

FOUR MAY GET PENSIONS

Funeral Held For Ellsworth Neely, New Oxford, on Tuesday; Other News From the County.

Horatio Lease, 45 years old, suffered a compound fracture of the left leg below the knee and a compound fracture of the left arm below the elbow when struck Monday evening by a tree he had helped to cut on the woodlot of William Myers, just beyond the Adams county line. The land is on the road leading from Hanover to Maple Grove.

Dr. W. F. Hollinger, of Abbottstown, was called to render first aid.
After dressing the injuries and applying bandages and splints, he removed Mr. Lease to the York Hospital. An X-Ray picture taken Tuesday morning showed that in addition to the fractures of the arm and leg he had received lacerations, abrasions and other injuries to his head.

Mr. Lease, whose home is in Manchester, Carroll county, Maryland, has been assisting to fell the timber on a ten-acre lot throughout the winter, working in company with a number of other men. He has a wife and a family of seven children.

INTER-FACULTY CLUB HOLDS ANNUAL BANQUET

Professor Asi-Wadam, of India, is Speaker of Evening Tuesday.

The Inter-faculty club, members of Gettysburg College, and the Lutheran Theological Seminary and Gettysburg Academy, entertained their wives at the annual banquet Tuesday night at the Hoffman Hotel. The guests, who numbered forty-seven, were seated at small tables which were prettily decorated with bouquets of jonquils. A five-course dinner was served.

Dr. Frank Clutz, president of the club, presided, and introduced the speaker of the evening, Dr. J. D.
Asi-Wadam, professor of English Literature in a university at Madras, India, who told in an interesting manner about his work there. The entertainment also included a brief talk by Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, vocal solo by Carl Simon and by Mrs. Rudolph Rosenstengel, the latter being accompanied by Mr. Salzer, violinist, and Professor Edward Seht, pianist.

300 TURN OUT TO HEAR COLLEGE GLEE CLUB

Despite rain and sleet which fell during the evening, a crowd of 300 persons gathered in Waynesboro on Tuesday evening to hear a concert by the Gettysburg College Glee Club. It was the Club's first appearance this year outside of Gettysburg. The concert was well received.

SENATOR GREENE IS IN MORE SERIOUS CONDITION

Washington, Feb. 20.—The condition of Senator Frank L. Greene, of Vermont, was described by physicians to be "not quite so favorable" this morning.

Mrs. Greene was summoned to her husband's bedside shortly after 11 o'clock and it was apparent to those in attendance that the end might be near.

COLLEGE AND HIGH PLAY 2 GAMES EACH

College Plays Games at Home While High School is Away Two Nights.

Gettysburg College plays two home basketball games this week, while Gettysburg High School plays on foreign floors two nights.

This evening at 8 o'clock in the College gymnasium, the Orange and Blue quintet goes into action against Dickinson's five. Dickinson has had a successful season up to the present time and a close game is expected.
On Saturday evening the Gettysburg College quintet meets Susquehanna College here.

High School's quintet journeys to Myerstown for a return game with the basketball team of the Myerstown High School. Gettysburg defeated Myerstown here last December in the second game of the season, but a closer game is expected on Friday night than the one here. The contest is not a League game.

On Saturday night the High School passers meet Lansford on the latter's floor in a League game. Lansford is at the foot of the League at present and Gettysburg will endeavor to better its standing at the expense of the Coal Miners.

Besides the Lansford game, only four more contests remain on High School's schedule, and all of them are League franchises. York and Lebanon High Schools will be played here on February 26 and March 1, respectively, while Williamsport will be met at Williamsport on March 7. On the following evening Gettysburg rings down the curtain on its 1923-24 basketball schedule by a home game with Lansford.

PLANK REFUSES TO HEAD LEAGUE

Great Portside Says He Will Gladly Help Organize County Association.

Eddie Plank, Carlisle street, veteran portside for the Philadelphia Athletics, when asked this morning if he would accept the presidency of the Adams County Baseball League if it were proffered, replied:

"I will not accept the presidency of the proposed Adams County Baseball League. As yet an offer to become head of the county association has not been made to me, but I will flatly refuse it if it is offered as I understand it will. I am willing to help form a county league and will gladly lend any assistance in that direction, but I will not accept the presidency."

At the same time, the great left-hander squashed rumors that he was to become manager of the Harrisburg Club in the New York-Pennsylvania League by declaring that if wanted to become manager of any club he would consider offers only from teams in the major leagues.

Plans are under way to form an eight-team baseball league in Adams county this summer, the lead being taken by diamond fans in New Oxford. Efforts will be made to get Gettysburg, Littlestown, Biglerville, Arendtsville, McSherrystown, Midway, Hanover and New Oxford into the league. According to tentative plans only local talent will be allowed to play on the teams, all class men being barred. Another meeting in the interest of the league's formation will be held February 27 at Wagner's store in New Oxford, when it is hoped representatives of all the towns mentioned for membership in the association will be present to adopt a constitution, elect officers and arrange a schedule for the coming season.

DAUGHERTY SAYS
WILL TALK SOON

Gives Out Hint After Conference at White House Today.

OFFICIALS ARE SILENT

Refuse to State Whether Coolidge Has Asked For Resignation of Attorney General or Not.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Attorney General Daugherty after a visit to the White House today announced he would have a statement to make shortly.

He refused to reveal whether the statement would relate to the question of his resignation recently discussed by members of the Senate and the administration.

Asked whether the President had asked the Attorney-General to step out of the cabinet, White House officials replied they could not discuss the subject.

In other quarters there were indications that the pressure for Mr. Daugh-erty's resignation among Republican members of the Senate had been greatly increased during the past few hours.
At the same time it was pointed out that the Attorney General had taken the position that he would stick to his post no matter what pressure might be directed against him from Congress.

The visit to the White House today was made of his own volition. He was with the President fifteen minutes and said as he left that he would have a statement soon and that it would be very short.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Harry Payne Whitney appeared today before the Senate oil committee and was questioned about possible stock transactions by public officials.

Mr. Whitney, who is a personal friend of Harry S. Sinclair, holder of the Teapot Dome lease, was examined at an executive session.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Senator Elk-ins, Republican, of West Virginia, said today he had purchased stock of the Sinclair consolidated oil company.
He added he was willing to go before the Senate oil committee and tell all about it. His statement reveals that he is the Senator whose name appeared on the records of a brokerage firm presented to the committee yesterday.

LINCOLN'S SUIT
BRINGS $6,500

Sold at Auction in Philadelphia After Spirited Bidding.

Philadelphia, Feb. 20.—A worn black suit of clothes, the collar stained and the trousers wrinkled, a badly mutilated black overcoat and a silk stock sold for $6,500 Tuesday afternoon, at an auction of historical relics.

The black suit, overcoat and stock were part of the wardrobe of Abraham Lincoln, worn by him on the night of April 14, 1865, when he was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth while attending a performance in Ford's Theater, Washington.

Mutilated By Souvenir Hunters The stains in the coat collar were made by the President's blood. The arms and back of the overcoat had been clipped by souvenir hunters, but the dark silk lining, on which were the figures of two American eagles and the motto, "One Country, One Destiny," was intact.

The garments were presented by Mrs. Lincoln to Alphonse Donn, a White House attache, who was President Lincoln's constant companion during his years at Washington.

DOCK STRIKERS FIRM SECOND DAY

Food Prices Soar as Union Holds Out For Higher Wages.

London, Feb. 20.—The second day of the dock workers' strike brought on alleviation in the general tie-up of docks throughout Great Britain, with consequent inconvenience to commerce and industry and the general public.

Secretary Edwin Bevin, of the Dock Workers' Union, issued a statement saying reports from the various districts indicated that there was "firm determination on the part of our men to see matters through," with the National Union of Railwaymen in certain sections cooperating with the strikers in the effort to force the employer to grant a wage increase.
Meanwhile important moves are underway in connection with the dispute. The chief of these is the court of inquiry set up by the minister of labor to inquire into the causes of the strike. This body held a preliminary meeting Tuesday morning, while the cabinet committee dealing with the strike took steps to act on the questions of national organization and control.

It is expected speedy action will be taken in the formation of emergency measures to be introduced in the house of commons for dealing with profiteering in food and other necessaries of life. This action seems called for from the fact that a further rise of 1½ pence per pound occurred in English beef prices, on the Smith's market, while what is called a "slight upward tendency" in prices of produce prevailed in the Covent Garden market.

The 5000 bags of American mail stacked in tenders at Plymouth had not been moved up Tuesday, and were still lying, covered by tarpaulins, only a few yards from the railway tracks leading to London.

Postal officials say there are no prospects of the immediate removal of the sacks and they are still doubtful whether the mails destined for the United States, Canada, New Zealand, Costa Rica and Jamaica, which are booked for the liner Olympic today, will be placed aboard.

EGYPT PREPARED TO REOPEN TOMB

States it Would Have Gone on With Research Work, Failing Carter's Apology.

London, Feb. 20.—The Egyptian government had made all preparations to take over the tomb of Tutankhamen, complete the research work under the direction of its own staff of trained archeologists, which is almost entirely British, if Howard Carter had failed to bow to the demand of the government regarding the reopening of the tomb, according to Aziz Izzet Pasha, the newly appointed Egyptian minister to London.

Universal indignation has been aroused in Egypt over Mr. Carter's closing of the tomb on so trivial a pretext as the non-admission of the wives of the foreign excavators before even the newspaper men had been admitted to see Tutankhamen's golden mummy case, the minister declared Tuesday. Throughout the controversy with Mr. Carter, according to the minister, the Egyptian government has carried out to the fullest detail the signal agreement which permitted Mr. Carter to admit whom he pleased as well as vesting him with the exclusive rights to the photographs and descriptive matter concerning the buried chamber and its contents.

The minister described Mr. Carter's action in closing the tomb as high-handed and his attitude toward the Egyptian government as disrespectful, expressing the view that it was the British expert's temperament which was the whole cause of the tomb controversy.

Under the terms laid down to Mr.
Carter, which the Egyptian government will insist be carried out, the press of the world will be given free access to the mortuary chamber, as well as the fullest reports and photographs through the Egyptian press bureau. Izzet expressed himself as much concerned as to American opinion regarding the action of his government and as anxious to get the Egyptian case clearly before the people of the United States.

MARKET BUREAU'S REPORT ON APPLES

Offerings of apples were generally moderate. In Philadelphia, Pennsylvania A2½ inch Stayman Winesaps ranged from $4.00 to $4.25 per barrel with similar stock in bushel hamper at $1.35 per bushel. New York A2½ inch R. I. Greenings brought $4.00 to $5.00 per barrel in New York, and $4.00 per barrel in Philadelphia; McIntosh of the same size and grade from New York sold for $6.00 to $7.50 per barrel with fancy stock high as $8.00. In Pittsburgh, New York A2½ inch Bald-wins were quoted at $3.50 to $4.00 per barrel; 2¼ inch and up stock from cold storage ranged from 90c to $1.00 per round bushel basket.
Shipments of apples for February 18th totaled 268 cars with Pennsylvania reporting 10 cars. Western New York shipping points quoted barrels of A2½ inch and up Bald-wins from cold storage at $3.85 to $4.00 per barrel in carload lots, f.o.b.

DEMOCRATS PUT GARNER RATES IN

Are Joined by Insurgent Republicans In Action On Tax Bill.

DEMOCRATS VOTE SOLID

Seck 44 Per Cent Maximum Surtax on Incomes Above $92,000; Would Increase Exemptions.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The Democratic substitute for the Mellon normal income tax and surtax rates approved Tuesday by the house, 222 to 196.

Action on the Democratic proposal came after the house had voted down in quick order a plan offered by Chairman Madden, of the appropriations committee, which paralleled the Mellon rates, and the substitute of Representative Frear, the Wisconsin Republican insurgent.

The Democrats voted solidly behind their leaders, and on each vote they were joined by a large contingent of Republicans. Chairman Green, of the ways and means committee, voted against his party leaders on the Madden amendment.

Approval was given the Democratic plan, which carries a maximum surtax of 44 per cent on incomes in excess of $92,000 and cuts normal rates in half, while Representative Longworth, the Republican leader, was waiting an opportunity to offer a compromise to unite the Republican ranks.

Democrats Voted Solidly Democrats voted solidly for their substitute. Sixteen Republicans, most of them insurgents, also voted for it.

A teller's vote, requiring members to file through the center aisle to be counted, was taken, rules preventing a roll call. Before a final vote on the bill is taken, however, a roll call on the Democratic substitute can be demanded.

Tax exemptions, under the substitute approved, would be increased from $1000 to $2000 for single persons and from $2500 to $3000 for heads of families. The Mellon bill proposed no such increase.

Democratic Tax Proposals

Washington, Feb. 20.—The Democratic income tax substitute adopted Tuesday by the house provides:

Normal taxes of 2 per cent on incomes below $5000, 4 per cent on incomes between $5000 and $8000, 6 per cent on incomes exceeding $8000.

A graduated surtax scale beginning at 1 per cent on incomes between $12,000 and $14,000 up to a maximum of 44 per cent on incomes exceeding $92,000.

Exemptions of $2000 for single persons and $3000 for heads of families.

Existing law provides:
Normal taxes of 4 per cent on incomes up to $4000 and 8 per cent above $4000.

Surtaxes beginning at 1 per cent on incomes between $6000 and $10,000 and graduating progressively to 50 per cent on incomes in excess of $200,000.

Exemption of $1000 for single persons and $2500 for heads of families.
The Mellon provision eliminated proposed:

Normal rates of 3 per cent on incomes up to $4000 and 6 per cent on incomes exceeding $4000.

Surtaxes ranging from 1 per cent on incomes between $10,000 and $12-000 to 25 per cent on incomes exceeding $100,000.

No increase in personal tax exemptions.

Cutting normal rates in half, with surtaxes continuing at their present level.

No change in exemptions.
The Madden amendment voted down differed from the Mellon schedule in the maximum surtax rate, which it sought to have fixed at 25 per cent.

FRANCE AROUSED BY FRANC'S FALL

Public Backing Poincare's Efforts To Stabilize Currency.

Paris, Feb. 20.—The spectacular fall of the franc on exchange has roused the French people to a keener sense of the realities than has been manifested since the armistice.

Groups of people crowd the sidewalks in front of windows where placards register the fluctuations in the money market, and the steps and spacious veranda of the bourse are crowded as never before by curb brokers and their clients eagerly watching the quotations or pressing into the throng around the blackboards to unload stocks and bonds that have become undesirable or to buy the leading speculative shares.

Throughs equally great and equally excited assemble around the bourse of commerce, where the reaction of exchange on the prices of commodities is discussed with animation.

The dominant note in all conversations is that the time has come for decisive action, and that, if parliament fails to follow Premier Poincare in his effort to stabilize the franc, something else must be done.
The shakiness of the Poincare cabinet is the subject of energetic comments in some groups, where it is recognized that the popularity of the premier and public confidence in his policy and firmness are being rapidly weakened by the shortcomings of his ministers.

Finance Minister de Lasteyrie is under sharp fire because he waited until catastrophe came to France before taking action to prevent further depreciation. M. Reibel, minister of the liberated regions, is held responsible for the so-called scandals in the liberated regions, because it is thought he could have stopped them if they really exist, or by proper publicity could have prevented the explosion caused by the Socialist attacks.

M. Raiberti, minister of marine, came in for severe criticism for the loss of the great airship Dixmude, as well as for the loss of the battleship France.

M. Cheron, minister of agriculture, is bombarded from all sides except from the farming regions for his alleged partiality to the agricultural interests, which policy is held to be in part responsible for the continued in-

PREDICT QUAKE BY METEOR STUDY

the scenes of the 'quakes, before the earthquake actually begin.

The belief that the center of the earth is composed of chemical elements similar to those of meteorites has been strengthened by tests showing that the surface of the earth has a specific gravity considerably less than that of the earth's mass as a whole. Consequently the interior of the globe must be much heavier.
Tests made of meteoric deposits show that they have a specific gravity about twice that of the components of the earth's surface, or about the same as the center of the earth is supposed to have to bring the average specific gravity of the earth to that which has been established.

The New Baltimore meteorite, the youngest of the Pennsylvania family, was discovered near New Baltimore, Somerset County, when a farmer in June, 1922, turned up the meteorite with his plow. He suspected that the unusually heavy stone might be a meteorite, and broke it with his sledge hammer, sending a small fragment to Dr. George H. Ashley, State Geologist, here. Doctor Ashley immediately recognized the fragment as meteoric iron; a test showed it contained ninety-three per cent iron and six per cent nickel.

This meteor was about the size of a picnic ham, 14 inches long, eight inches across and five inches thick, tapered like a ham. It weighed forty pounds.

LAY NEW CHARGES UPON DAUGHERTY

Senator Wheeler Says Friends of Attorney-General Were Paid Money.

POINTS TO OHIO EXAMPLE

Immediate Action On Resolution Calling For Sharp Investigation Is Blocked by Senator Lodge.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Friends of Attorney-General Daugherty obtained money for services in connection with Department of Justice cases, Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, charged during a speech in the Senate late Tuesday.

Speaking in support of his resolution for an investigation of the Attorney-General and the Department of Justice, the Montana Senator added that if Mr. Daugherty did not get money from these friends he was "a bigger fool than what the people of the United States give him credit for."

Cites Jesse Smith As Example

Senator Wheeler said that Jesse Smith, of Ohio, a friend of Mr. Daugherty, who killed himself in the Attorney-General's apartment here a year ago, had had an office in the Department of Justice and accepted money in connection with various cases pending before the department.

When the oil scandal developed, Senator Wheeler declared, it appeared that Mr. Daugherty was "mixed in it."

"It appeared that he was the friend of Ned McLean," the Senator added.
"Everybody knows he was the friend of Sinclair. Everybody knows he was the friend of Doheny and that these three men met in the Department of Justice from time to time. Everybody knows that Jesse Smith, brought on here from Ohio, had an office in the Department of Justice and was accepting money in connection with various cases before the department."

Points To New York Reports

"Newspapers in New York carried reports of how the Attorney-General's friend, Thomas B. Felder, was collecting money by selling offices and pardons and dismissing whisky cases in New York."

"Everybody knows that other friends and confidential advisers were collecting money and giving as their reasons that they could use influence with the Attorney-General."

"Of course, it is very difficult to show, tracing them through personal friends, that he accepted money. If the Attorney-General hasn't actually gotten the money he's a bigger fool than what the people of the United States give him credit for."

After Senator Wheeler's speech an effort to secure immediate action on the resolution calling for an investigation of the Attorney-General was blocked by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, Republican leader. The measure was sent to committee.

Official's Name On Broker's List

The name of at least one public official appears on the list of stock brokerage transactions presented to the Senate Oil Committee Tuesday by broker officials, according to members of the committee.

They declined to say who this official was. Attention was called that this list was only a partial one, and that it was determined to have the committee auditors make a thorough examination of all the books of the companies.

The committeemen declared there would be no suppression of the facts; that when the audit was completed the names would be brought out in

FOR A FEW DOLLARS You Can Drive With Safety

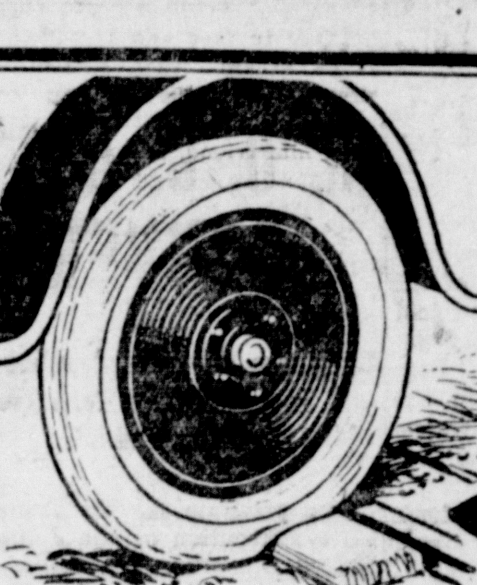

First, for safety you must have a clear vision. There is sure to be lots of snow and rain during the next few months. Take no chances. In a few minutes we can equip your car with a WINDSHIELD CLEANER that will give you a clear vision constantly. It will give you added driving pleasure, too.

Of even more importance for your safety are tire chains. A pair are an absolute necessity, two pairs eliminates all possibility of skidding. Drive your car in right away. We'll slip them on in a hurry. You'll feel better.

"Omnibus Pension Bill" compiled by the pension committee and now waiting action by the house. This bill provides for pensions of $50 a month for Mrs. Isabelle Wolford, Hanover; $30 a month for Mrs. Margaret Andrews, York; $20 a month for Anna R. Keefe, York Springs, and $20 a month for Sarah J. Heilman, York.

Ellsworth M. Neely Buried

The funeral of Ellsworth M. Neely, New Oxford, was held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the house. The Rev. I. S. Ditzler, East Berlin, officiated. Burial was made in the New Oxford cemetery.

The pallbearers were: W. R. Snyder, David Flentz, James Harman, J. C. Bierly, Simon Keim and George Haverstock.

Leathery-Baker Wedding

Harry A. Leathery, East Berlin, and Miss Margaret I. Baker, Dillsburg, were married on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the residence of the bride's parents, by the Rev. G. A. Livingston. The bride wore a dark blue canton crepe dress. The bridegroom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Leathery, East Berlin. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Baker, Dillsburg.

Sheetz-Dell Wedding

Miss Esther M. Dell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Henry Dell, Littlestown, became the bride of George F. Sheetz, only son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sheetz, Hanover, at a wedding performed in the Methodist Episcopal parsonage, Frederick street, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The ring ceremony was used by the pastor, the Rev. J. B. Brenneman. The bride was attired in a dress of blue serge, trimmed in rainbow shades, and wore a steel shade baronet satin hat with hosiery to match. The bride, who was recently employed in the Littlestown sewing factory, is now employed in the Hanover shoe factory. The bridegroom is assisting his father in the laundry business. Mr. and Mrs. Sheetz will reside for the present at the home of the bridegroom's parents. They were taken for a ride in an automobile decorated and provided with noise making devices through the streets of Hanover and Littlestown following the ceremony.

PLAYERS SCORE IN ENGLISH COMEDY

It is later developed that "Spoofy," after hit over the head with a policeman's club, regains his right mind. At the same time it is brought out that he is Lord Leicester and that he robbed his own home and stole his own baby.

In the end, the American detective, who comes to the "Gubbins" home to arrest "Foster," tells him that he has fallen heir to his father's estate and that he can easily pay back what he has taken and clear the insurance company which paid the loss in the first place.

Miss Mary Ramer, as "Mrs. Gubbins"; Fred Pfeffer, as "Jimmie Gubbins"; Murray Miller, as "Spoofy"; and Grayson Peters, as "Briggs of Scotland Yard," were outstanding stars of the performance, although the acting of the supporting cast was on par with theirs. Other characters in the play, who ably assisted the leading characters in their roles, were Miss Ellen Tipton, "Miss Peggy Woofers," Jimmie Gubbins' girl; "Bolton, the American detective," Percy Miller; Miss Dorothy Crouse, "Miss Rose Gordon"; Horace Armor, "Benson, from Scotland Yard"; Miss Marie Codori, "Lady Leicester"; William Timmins, "Patrolman Allen," and Monroe Weiser, "Patrolman Hooper."

Special mention is due the acting of little Miss Sarah Jane Abell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Abell, East Middle street, who seemed to thoroughly enjoy her premier appearance on the stage. Although she did not have a line to speak, she smiled gleefully when she was pushed onto the stage by "Spoofy," in her carriage.

Earl W. Stallsmith, who has directed a number of Firemen's plays, can consider "Three Live Ghosts" his best effort, those who follow the theater here say. Others on the executive staff were William G. Weaver, business manager; Charles Myers, stage manager; Edward Woodward, stage carpenter. Music was furnished by the Majestic Melody Mixers.

ORTTANNA

Orrtanna—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Currens and little daughter, of Cashtown, visited their aunt, Mrs. Alice Currens, recently.

Peter McDannel and Cletus Herring spent Thursday with Raymond Wetzel. While there they assisted him with some work, owing to the latter's having the misfortune to badly fracture his hand while unloading railroad ties at Orrtanna about a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. William Saum visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Saum, last Sunday.

Washington's birthday will be observed at Scott's School next Friday. A special program is being arranged by the pupils and teacher, Mrs. Hartman. The public is invited. The patrons are especially urged to attend.

The BRANDING IRON

by Katharine Newlin Burt

COPYRIGHT BY KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

Every minute Betty looked younger and prettier, more provoking. Her child-moist mouth with its clever smile was bright as though his kiss had painted it.

"Who is the girl?" asked Prosper. He was deeply flushed. Being capable of simultaneous points of view, he had been stung by that cool phrase of Betty's concerning "Jasper's guilt." "I'll tell you in a moment. Did you destroy my letter?"

He shook his head.

"Oh, Prosper, please!"

He took it out, tore it up, and walking over to the open fire, burned the papers. He came back to his tea.

"Well, Betty?"

"The girl," said Betty, "is the star in your play, 'The Leopardess,' the girl that Jasper picked up two September ago out west. He has written to you about her. She was a cook. If you please, a hideous creature, but Jasper saw at once what there was in her. She has made the play. You'll have to acknowledge that yourself when you see her. She is wonderful. And, partly owing to the trouble I've taken with her, the girl is beautiful. One wouldn't have thought it possible. She is not charming to me, she's not in the least subtle. It's odd that she should have had such an effect upon Jasper, of all men."

Prosper slipped his tea and listened. He looked at her and was bitterly conscious that the excitement which had pleased and surprised him was dying out. That faintness again assailed his spirit. He was feeling stifled, ashamed, bored. Yes, that was it, bored. That life of service and battle-danger in France had changed him more than he had realized till now. He was more simple, more serious, more moral, in a certain sense. He was like a man who, having denied the existence of Apollon, has come upon him face to face and has been burnt by his breath. Such a man is inevitably moral. All this long, intricate intrigue with the wife of a man who called him friend, seemed to him horribly unworthy. If Betty had been a great lover, if she had not lost courage at the eleventh hour and left him to face that terrible winter in Wyoming, then their passion might have justified itself; but now there was a staidness in their relationship. He hated the thought of the long divorce proceedings, of the decent interval, of the wedding, of the married life. He had never really wanted that. He would have to take her, to spend his days and nights with her, to travel with her. She would want to visit that gay, little forsaken house in a Wyoming canyon. With vividness he saw a girl lying prone on a black rug before a dancing fire, her hair all fallen about her face, her secret eyes lifted impatiently from the book—"You had ought to be writin', Mr. Gael."

"What are you smiling for, Prosper?" Betty asked sharply.

He looked up, startled and confused.

"Sorry, I've got into beastly absent-minded habits. Is that Morena?"

Jasper opened the curtains and came in, greeting Prosper in his stately, charming fashion. "Tonight," he said, "we'll show you a leopardess worth looking at, won't we, Betty? But first you must tell us about your own experience. You look wonderfully fit, doesn't he, Betty? And changed. They say the life out there stamps a man, and they're right. It's taken some of that winged-demon look out of your face, Prosper, put some soul into it."

He talked and Betty laughed, showing not the slightest evidence of effort, though the soul Jasper had seen in Prosper's face felt shivered for her treachery. Prosper wondered if she could be right in her surmise about Jasper. The Jew was infinitely capable of dissimulation, but there was a clarity of look and smile that filled Prosper with doubts. And the eyes he turned upon his wife were quite as apparently as ever the eyes of a disappointed man.

So absorbed was he in such observations that he found it intolerably difficult to fix his attention on the talk. Jasper's fluency seemed to ripple senselessly about his brain.

"You must consent to one thing, Luck; you must allow me to choose my own time for announcing the authorship." This found its way partially to his intelligence and he gave careless assent.

"Of course—" Morena was thoughtful for an instant. "How would it do for me to leave it with Melton, the business manager? Eh? Suppose I phone him and talk it over a little. He'll want to wait till toward the end of the run. He's keen; has just the commercial sense of the born advertiser. Let him choose the moment. Then we can feel sure of getting the right one. Will you, Luck?"

"You see, I'm so confoundedly busy, so many I'm in the fire, I might just miss the psychic moment. I think Melton's the man—I'll call him up tonight before we leave. Then I won't forget it and I'll be sure to catch him, too."

"Of course—" Morena was thoughtful for an instant. "How would it do for me to leave it with Melton, the business manager? Eh? Suppose I phone him and talk it over a little. He'll want to wait till toward the end of the run. He's keen; has just the commercial sense of the born advertiser. Let him choose the moment. Then we can feel sure of getting the right one. Will you, Luck?"

"You see, I'm so confoundedly busy, so many I'm in the fire, I might just miss the psychic moment. I think Melton's the man—I'll call him up tonight before we leave. Then I won't forget it and I'll be sure to catch him, too."

TO BUILD STRIP TO DIVIDE ROADS

White Cement Will Be Set In And Paint Plan Abandoned.

A plan of building into State highways a white cement strip to divide roads instead of using paint was announced at the State Highway Department together with some plans for driver's examinations.

In the center of the slabs on grades and on curves the Department will build in a four-inch white strip, using for this purpose a white cement. The first of these built-in lines was put down on the road between York and Harrisburg last year. The cost of the white line built into the pavement will not equal the cost of a painted white line renewed for three years; and the life of the white cement line is the life of the road. This line will be four inches in width. The Department in its studies found unnecessary the ten-inch line heretofore used.

The procedure to be followed by applicants for drivers' licenses after February 29 provides that unless an operator held a 1923 license he must be examined before being issued a permit to operate a machine. The announcement says: "No person will be given an operator's license who cannot read English. This is in conformity with those states which examine drivers—Connecticut, New Jersey and Maryland. Secretary Wright of the Highway Department declares that this is a safety measure, since persons unable to read English cannot read traffic or other signs nor the motor laws."

"Applicants for a driver's license will apply on form No. 103, procurable from notaries or others, for a learner's permit. An addressograph plate is immediately cut at Harrisburg and a learner's permit card is issued, the form No. 103 being filed according to the learner's permit number. An alphabetical file is also made."

"The applicant within thirty days presents himself for examination at the points in each county already designated by the Department. The examiner makes an individual report for each person, filing daily with the Automobile Division at Harrisburg. If the recommendation, favors the issuance of a license the application is sent through the regular work. When it reaches the addressograph section the learner's plate is taken from the file and on it is punched the license number given the driver. The operator's license card is then forwarded to the applicant."

"The learner's permit granted applicants is good only for thirty days. No examinations are held on legal holidays. Should the applicant be unable to present himself during the period named, he must give reasons to the Highway Department at Harrisburg."

"The examination of applicants for drivers' licenses will be common-sense in every particular. There will be no trick questions," said Secretary Wright. "Any person of ordinary intelligence who is able to operate a motor vehicle should be able to pass this examination."

He whispered a name, which Betty could not make out, then he sat down, moistened his lips with his tongue, and sat through the entire first act and neither moved nor spoke. As the curtain went down he stood up.

"I must go out," he said, and hesitated in the back of the box till Jasper came over to him with an anxious question. Then he began to stammer nervously. "Don't tell her, Jasper, don't tell her."

"Tell her what, man? Tell whom?" Jasper gave him a shake. "Don't you like Jane? Isn't she wonderful?"

"Yes, yes, extraordinary." "Made for the part?"

"No." Prosper's face twisted into a smile. "No. The part came second, she was there first. Morena, promise me you won't tell her who wrote the play."

"Look here, Prosper, suppose you tell me what's wrong. Have you seen a ghost?"

Prosper laughed; then, seeing Betty, her face a rigid question, he struggled to lay hands upon his self-control. "Something very astonishing has happened, Morena—one of those 'things not dreamt of in a man's philosophy.' I can't tell you. Have you arranged for me to meet Jane West?"

"After the show, yes, at supper." "But not as the author?"

"No. I was waiting for you to tell her that."

"She mustn't know. And—and I can't meet her that way, at supper." Again he made visible efforts at self-control. "Don't tell Betty what a fool I am. I'll go out a minute. I'll be all right."

Betty was coming toward them. He gave a painful smile and fled.

ARENDSVILLE LYCEUM COURSE PRESENTS THIRD NUMBER

The Arendtsville Lyceum Course gave its third number of the season on Saturday night, a musical entertainment by the Patton Brothers trio, of Portland, Oregon. It was a unique type of entertainment, different from that usually offered by concert companies. In the opinion of many lovers of music who were present, it was the best program, from the standpoint both of selection and of rendition, that the Arendtsville Lyceum course has ever offered.

The trio was under the leadership of Lowell Patton, a pianist of rare talent. Mr. Patton was assisted by his brother, Gault, and by Adrian Wynobel, vocalists. The program was arranged in a prologue, six episodes, and an epilogue. The episodes were Russian, Oriental, popular, religious and patriotic. Each was introduced by a humorous explanation given in verse by the leader. They introduced a wide range of songs, classical and popular, religious chants and sacred classics, character songs, pianologues and piano solos, many of the songs given to the accompaniment of folk dances. Each episode was marked by appropriate costumes, which, assisted by a skilful manipulation of colored lights and a tastefully set stage, added to the pleasure of the entertainment. All the members of the trio were young men of pleasing personalities and of fine musical gifts.

The fourth number of the Arendtsville course, to be given next Saturday night, will be the annual home talent play. A lively three act comedy entitled "A Scrap of Paper" will be presented. It is a translation from the French of Victorien Sardou, but an old favorite on the American stage. It is marked in an unusual degree by the cleverness of plot typical of the mid-nineteenth century French play, but differs from many plays of that period and school in its wholesome cleanliness. It has no "eternal triangle."

The cast will include, besides the members of the faculty of the Arendtsville Vocational School, Paul Wert, Mrs. Elizabeth Rice, Roy Heckeluber, George Funt, Mrs. Alfred McCaslin, Miss Myrna Sheeley and Hermann Wierman.

THE LOVE OF MONEY

It is the love of money and not money, after all, that is the root of all evil, and one cannot dissociate at this time the love for money, sometimes referred to as Mammon in the Bible, as the cause for the exposures in the oil scandal and the blasted reputations that have followed and which, it seems, are not at an end.

It is a curious fact that Christ while preaching warned his followers against wealth, but he did not warn them against the blight of poverty. He was never afraid of poverty cankering the soul, but he was fearful of wealth destroying the finer thing in life. He knew all about covetousness and one of his great sermons was preached on the text of "Ye Cannot Serve God and Mammon."

A distinguished missionary of the Christian religion, the great Xavier himself, toward the close of his long and eventful life, made a most revealing statement, cites an exchange editorially. He said that during his priesthood more than 10,000 men and women had confessed to him sins of every description and that many of them were of the most revolting kind. Yet, not one of the ten thousand men and women had confessed to him the sin of covetousness. That is an amazing omission, and it reminds us how easy it is to deceive ourselves. We go along our ways complacent and unsuspecting when lo, suddenly, there is an upheaval, an exposure, in individual, community or national life. And once again back of it all is Mammon, the love of money.

If the Teapot Dome scandal did nothing else it has taught the country to think. Successes of purely materialistic standards have been entirely too common here of late. And it seems, that what the country needs is a revival of common honesty. School, church and home should stand together in upholding the sheer nobility of a character that is inalienable, that no price can buy. The one popular proverb, "a good name is preferable to great riches," deserves to be put in circulation again. Every generation needs to be taught that a good living and honesty is preferable to great riches and a soiled name.

Prominent Business Man Dies HAGERSTOWN.—Thomas B. South, 76 years old, for many years one of the leading business men of Hagerstown, died at the home of J. William Darner, South Potomac street, shortly after 10 o'clock Monday night. Although in failing health for some time, Mr. South's condition was not considered alarming until last Wednesday when he developed pneumonia. From that time on his condition rapidly became worse. Mr. South was the son of the late Benjamin South, who for many years conducted a hotel at Funkstown. In his early manhood Mr. South conducted a dry-goods and grocery store at Funkstown. Later he removed to Minneapolis, where he engaged in business. A few years later he returned to Hagerstown and with Henry Jones established the Hagerstown Grocery Company, one of the largest wholesale houses in this section. He was also interested in many other business enterprises and was for many years a member of the board of directors of the Second National Bank.

Women Protest Agents Removal HAGERSTOWN.—Delegations from many county organizations and letters from many more protesting against the action of the Board of County Commissioners in withdrawing their appropriation for the maintenance of a County Home Demonstration Agent will greet the Commissioners when they open their regular weekly meeting. The most prominent of the delegations will be one from the Washington County Farm Bureau. The Bureau recently appointed the delegation and passed resolutions condemning the Board's action. The delegation will urge the Commissioners to reconsider their action. "Practically every woman's club in the county has joined the protest and will be represented at the meeting either through a committee or through written protests."

SELFISHNESS

A man has built a chimney stack between the east and me And spoiled a patch of golden sky Where beauty used to be;
 And yonder to the westward was a clump of maples tall, But now an ugly barn is there and I have lost them all.

The quiet and the calm are gone from scenes which once I knew,
 The clover fields of yesterday Are rushing through;
 The brook which laughed and danced Along its journey to the sea Now wears upon its weary face the look of slavery.

 How fair the dawn of day would be But for that chimney stack, How fair the west if only man could put those maples back!
 Yet almost everywhere we turn some lovely view to scan,
 We find the realms of beauty being encroached upon by man.

Yet why should I complain at this,
 Why mourn the maple tree,
 When day by day my selfishness steals beauty's charm from me?
 I will not check some whim of mine to serve the broader view, But raise my barns and chimney stacks for what I want to do.

I. O. O. F. Holds Bazaar

FREDERICK.—Transforming it as if by a magic wand from a place that bespeaks the stern ways of Mars, the god of war, into a habitation of beautiful decorations tokening fraternalism and pleasure, workmen were busy at the Armory Monday morning making final preparation for the I. O. O. F. bazaar, which is now open and which will come to an end on Saturday night. Outstanding among the attractions at the bazaar will be the decorations. Large American flags arranged in innumerable designs and flanked on all sides by the emblems of the various branches and auxiliaries of the I. O. O. F. is the keynote of the decorations. This work was done by the Community Decorating Company, a newly established local concern, of which Edward Dietz is the proprietor. Mr. Dietz has lately come to Frederick. The sign work and design painting was done by Ernest Pettingall.

Hotel Sells For $15,975

FREDERICK.—The sum of $15,975 was the price brought at the sale of the Hotel Yardley, of Brunswick, at mortgagee's sale, at the court house, Theodore H. Alexander, real estate and insurance agent, of Frederick, was the purchaser. The Yardley is situated on Potomac avenue, and is three stories in height, and has a front of red pressed brick. Adjoining the lobby is a modern storeroom. The hotel is also equipped with a restaurant and pool room, and a number of the rooms has a private bath. The hotel was for some years managed by John D. Hoffmaster, of Blue Ridge Summit, and later was acquired by Charles F. Willard, of Brunswick, who was the proprietor for several years. In 1921, the hotel was sold by Mr. Willard to Walter C. Ambrose.

Veteran Shoots Himself

WAYNESBORO.—Placing a single barreled shotgun against his back and adjusting it in such manner that he could discharge it, Percy Naugle, 27, war veteran and well known young man of this section, took his own life Friday evening at the home of his sister, Mrs. Chester Eyer, Rouzer'sville, with whom he lived when in this part of the country. Despondency over his marital affairs is believed to have been the cause of his act. The sponge ball from the gun tore a small hole in his back hardly larger than a dollar and pierced the heart. Death was apparently instantaneous according to Coroner Shull who was called as soon as the body was found, and was self-inflicted, an inquest not being necessary. Naugle had been employed in Reading for some time but had returned from there Thursday night. He was in town Friday afternoon and, while appearing rather downcast, gave no intimation of his intentions to take his life if he had such intentions at the time.

TO be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality.

That's why S.S.S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. Does This Condition Exist in Gettysburg?

A recent medical inspection of the public schools of Knoxville, Tennessee, revealed the astonishing fact that 50 per cent of the scholars suffered from mal-nutrition or were subnormal in health. This condition exists in a greater or less degree in Gettysburg and in the entire United States, and that is why Conner's Weearts came into existence. Conner's Weearts is a food with a purpose and that purpose is to supply those vital elements that are lacking in our daily diet.

John and Mary Are Here With A Breakfast Food to Convert This Condition.

Doctors Recommend Conner's Weearts

Because:

- 1—They correct Mal-nutrition by supplying iron, vitamins and rich nutrition.
- 2—They contain calcium which builds white, perfect teeth and prevents decay.
- 3—They contain the anti-neuritic vitamin which feeds and strengthens the nerves.
- 4—The bran and cellulose insures good digestion and relief from constipation.

John and Mary also have Conner's Health Kernels and in case you suffer with constipation or stomach trouble take a package of this food home and you will say John and Mary are your friends.

THOUGHT 3 LITTLE CHILDREN NEEDED MOTHER'S CARE

"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted much longer. I did not care so long for myself, but did not want to leave my three little children who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mav's Wonderful Remedy and I took a course of it. I have since been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Such popularity must be deserved

TO BE singled out for public honor, a man must have proved his quality. And to be chosen by millions, even a cigarette must have "made good."

So Chesterfield's swift rise to popularity is more than a measure of success. It is proof positive of finer tobaccos—which means better taste.

And better taste is the sole reason for Chesterfield's huge sales.

VERY GOOD WATCH DOG

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

Geoffrey was a very good dog; he had been the gift of one of Peggie's admirers before she left the city apartment to live in a country village, in the home of her father's.

Geoff was to be their protector. His fault appeared to be a passion for barking.

"And you see," said Peggy to Sophia, "we must not punish him for that, or he would think it wrong to sound an alarm if a burglar should appear. We will just have to let him bark," she decided, "until he grows out of puppyhood. Then he may understand."

"By that time," remarked Sophia, "the poor beast may be shot by the man next door. Three times has he complained to me about being disturbed in his sleep o' nights."

Peggy wheeled about indignantly. "The man next door," she exclaimed. "Who is he?"

"There's little I can find out from the black woman who cooks for him," Sophia replied, "save that he's some kind of writing man. He has a dog of his own, a bristly creature, who's picked up Geoff for a friend. But the bristly one don't bark, lessen some belated person passes the gardens late at night. The man's name on the gate post is 'LeClare Lawrence.'"

The young woman ran to respond to the telephone.

"I am sorry," Sophia heard her say, then Peggy dimpled, and held aloof the receiver. "I'm going to answer him as 'P. Nelson' would," she whispered. "It's that LeClare person."

"Sorry my dog troubles you. No, I shall not punish him for barking. Spoil his watching value."

The neighbor was trying to placate with pleasantry; he laughed good naturedly. Sophia near, heard a quotation concerning "A dog, a woman and a walnut tree"—"The more you beat them," she continued the quotation, "the better they be."

Peggy clicked back the receiver angrily. "He will find," she said, "that there's one woman and one dog that won't be beaten."

She saw her neighbor walking later in his garden. He was a distinguished, youngish man, with brown hair and brown eyes behind his broad glasses.

"The chocolate eclaire!" mocked Peggy.

The phone rang that evening after Geoff had noisily chased the neighbor's white cat back to its home. "Mr. Nelson," suggested the author, "this morning I endeavored to reason with you regarding your nuisance of a dog. Now he has formed a habit of invading my kennel and airing his voice there. My own dog, heretofore manageable, follows his example. If you do not keep the animal at home I shall use some desperate measure. I might point out that he is altogether too friendly with strangers to be valuable as a watch dog."

Peggy, in her indignation, forgot that she was to her neighbor, "P. Nelson." Her contralto voice had all its sweetness, though she spoke crisply.

"I never heard such impertinence. You may send my dog home when he bothers you, but he shall not be tied."

The neighbor's voice came back haltingly: "I beg your pardon; I had no idea I was speaking to a woman—nevertheless—"

"Nevertheless!" gasped Peggy, and hung up the receiver.

She lay awake long that night. Geoff was noisy; she went down herself to the dark cellar to release him. At one o'clock Peggy, on her wakeful cot, heard an unaccustomed sound.

Geoff's one short bark was followed by a rushing noise, as though he chased an invader. She went to the window, then stood trembling. Geoff had made his capture—his prey lay on the ground beneath the dog's great body—and horrors! she could see him worrying with his wide jaws the man's clothing. Geoff's mouth was at his victim's throat. Even in her horror, a passing thought came of the neighbor's prediction—her dog would never do as a protector—he was too friendly!

She caught up a velvet robe and was running through the hedge that separated the gardens. She must call upon her aggressive neighbor now for assistance.

Geoff must not be allowed to kill, even a burglar, and yet the burglar must be held. She stood panting, as her dog left his man to romp to her side. The man sat up in the moonlight. He was the writer from next door. Instantly he grasped the situation—the girl in the velvet lounging robe—her hair falling about her shoulders.

"Sorry," remarked LeClare Lawrence, "that we frightened you. I had been busy indoors all day and thought I'd rest out here under the trees for awhile. Your dog found me, and he has been trying to start the usual frolic."

Peggy swayed, then in quite an old-fashioned manner fainted in her neighbor's arms. When she opened her eyes it was to look into brown eyes, deep with tender concern.

"You don't," she confusedly murmured, "look like a man who would beat a woman."

"Let us talk this thing over," the neighbor remorsefully begged, then smiled. "I think that you and I may be good friends, P. Nelson," he added. Faintly still, Peggy answered his smile. I think so, too—Eclair," she agreed.

Geoff was off to seek his chum; he was an understanding dog and may have wanted in his own way to make known his belief that eventually they would all be a happy family together.
